Railroad strike

Workers plan a nationwide walkout Wednesday

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A nationwide strike is anticipated Wednesday by 13 railroad worker unions, affecting cargo transported by CSX Railroad locally.

Elimination of seniority districts, no pay increase in three years, no cost of living adjustment, and health and welfare plan payments to be partially paid by the employee are some of the complaints unions are attempting to settle before a midnight deadline on April 17.

David Marquar of Bay St. Louis explained the most serious issue for the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees (track and bridge workers) is over the elimination of seniority districts.

The country is divided by districts, Marquar said. It is within each district a worker builds his years of service and earns preference in jobs.

The elimination of the district divisions would allow those from other areas of the country to travel to any district and supersede those working from that area.

Marquar said "the men are angry" and are afraid there will be people coming here, taking their jobs, thereby forcing the locals in the district to travel to other areas to find work.

"No joking," added Marquar, "there will be divorces if men are forced to leave their families for long periods of time."

Brian Martin, a staff member with Congressman Gene Taylor, speaking on the congressman's behalf, explained that the unions and the railroads have been negotiating for more than three years to no avail.

He told how President Bush called for the formation of a board to make recommendations for settlement. The President's Emergency Board (PEB) reported its findings in January of this year, to the satisfaction of neither side.

"There are 15 railroad companies trying to negotiate with 13 unions."

Reward offered for information about missing Bay Side Park man

BY TRACI BONNEY

A $1,000 reward is being offered for information on the whereabouts of Bay Side Park resident William "Billy" Burr, who has been missing since March 23.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson and department officials have been searching for Burr and interviewing those associated with him for the three weeks following his disappearance.

The gold 1986 Toyota station wagon (Hancock County license 1CMP983) that Burr was reported to be driving when he was last seen early on the morning of March 23 has not been found.

Burr, 36, was reported to have been seen last by a co-worker of Burr. According to the sheriff's report, Burr dropped off the co-worker at his Bay St.

Louis residence and was apparently headed home when he was last seen around 3:45 a.m.

Peterson described Burr as being between 5'10" and 5'11", weighing about 150 pounds and having curly brown hair and brown eyes. According to the description, he also has the name Glenda tattooed on one arm and the name Ruth on the other.

He was last seen wearing black jeans, a cream-colored button-up shirt and brown suede shoes.

Anyone with information that could assist in finding Burr is encouraged to call the Sheriff's Department at 467-5101 and asked for Peterson or Chief Deputy Delbert Seay.

Gex: Gill net bill gives no real power

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hancock County Board of Supervisors attorney Gerald Gex doesn't seem to be impressed.

Gex said at a Thursday workshop meeting that he had not yet thoroughly studied House Bill 1106, which gives supervisors the authority to submit proposed gill net regulations to the Bureau of Marine Resources within 30 days after H.B. 1106 goes into effect July 1. The

Lizana, District 3, Democrat; Hancock County Superintendent of Education: Myrna L. Bourgeois, Democrat

Tax Assessor/Collector: Edward D. "Eddie" Murtagh Jr., incumbent, Democrat

Justice Court Judges: West — Lee B. Klein, incumbent, Democrat; East — Joseph Dobson, incumbent, Democrat

1991 Beach Front Festival poster offered

The 1991 Beach Front Festival Poster is now available at Mary's Eatery and Screendoor Graphics.

The poster, which has been printed in a limited edition of 300 (signed and numbered) and sells for $20 each, is the work of New Orleans sign painter Gordon Kroll. Kroll has produced posters for the Ponchartroula Strawberry Festival, the Forest Festival, the Amite Oyster Festival, the Independence Italian Festival and the Lacombe Crab Festival, among others.

The six-color poster depicts a sunrise on the Bay, a pelican perched on a piling, a fisherman in his skiff, a red snapper, palmetto palms and an overhanging oak tree bough draped with Spanish moss.

Second Bay attorney has only one link to county

BY TRACI BONNEY

Bay St. Louis's new city attorney for gambling-related matters has but one link to Hancock County—a diploma from St. Stanislaus High School.

Pass Christian resident and Gulfport attorney Donald Rafferty is a 1974 graduate of the school and comes from a family of SSC students. His father, grandfather and brothers all attended the all-male school.

One brother currently teaches and coaches there.

Rafferty owns no property or business in the county. He said his lack of linkage to either the county or the dockside gambling issue were probably the main factors in his being retained as special counsel.

Rafferty stated that he had no public or political involvement either for or against gambling in Harrison County before the December 4, 1990, election where dockside gaming was defeated.

He is currently on retainer to the City of Bay St. Louis, but said he has not yet had cause to bill the city for any services.

Rafferty was retained by the city after city attorney John Seafide, who owns beachfront property targeted as a possible location for dockside gaming, suggested to Mayor Edward Fave that the city consider hiring another lawyer to handle any questions or other matters related to the issue.

After graduating from SSC, Rafferty attended Gulf Coast Community College and Southeastern Louisiana University, and graduated from the University of Mississippi law school in 1984. Since then, he has operated his own law practice in Gulfport.

"I work mostly on personal injury cases, criminal defense and municipal law," Rafferty commented. "I've had wider experience in the first two, and

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Your heart's treasure

Roger Clemens stood the world of baseball on its ear during the off-season when he signed a multi-year contract worth more than $5.38 million per year.

Predictably, both the egos and the money bags of all the big-name players suddenly got bigger and therefore needed filling to compensate for the Clemens coup.

First, and perhaps the most interesting, to sulk and pout was the Pittsburgh Pirates' Barry Bonds, the National League Most Valuable Player of the year. Barry had sounded so humble and so genuine in accepting the MVP trophy after the baseball season. With large tears in his eyes, he had given credit to everyone. Now, apparently, he figures much more credit is due him.

Rickey Henderson, the American League MVP, is the most current of a long line of crybabies. Says he: "It's pride, period! Every time I hit that dirt (stealing a base), it's pride. I don't think my contract is fair. I don't think it goes with the way I play the game. I don't think I'm fortieth or fiftieth on the list."

One very peculiar thing here is that Rickey's contract was fair enough until Roger Clemens came up with the unthinkable.

It's all relative, of course, but Barry, Rickey and all the other restless souls would do well to put it in perspective.

At the going rates of today, the Major Leagues would not be able to afford Barry's father, Bobby, who put together appreciably more eye-popping statistics than his recently-famous son.

At that, Bobby was merely an understudy of the Great One himself, Willie Mays. Need we say more? We could throw in their tall, powerful teammate, Hall-of-Famer Willie "Stretch" McCovey, who would have helped break the league bank today.

If we would dare add Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Hank Aaron, Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson and a slew of others in their heyday, there would be such financial chaos that the Federal Government would have to be called in to arbitrate the mess.

"That was then, but this is now!" Barry, Rickey and the other kings of pout will object. "This is a new day and age, and we have to deal with things and situations the way they are!"

Sure, guys. We do have to live in the 1990s. However, some things are perennial, true, good and unchangeable. One such thing was expressed by Willie Mays in the rush of youth: "You mean they actually want to play me for playing this game?"

Just fishin'

Not that Willie would have turned down the money. It is just that he was not primarily about ego and lure. Somehow, there must be a way for a super athlete to be the best that she/he can and still have her/his heart in the right place. It has been done before—all relatively—and therefore it can be done again.

Good old American greed, the unabashed incentive which fuels and fires the capitalist engine, is not only alive and well. It is taking over whatever is left of role images, of genuine heroes who dare to be unselfish and concerned first about children. Add inordinate ego to that greed, and you have today's athlete.

Commanding an incredibly high price tag, today's athlete, all things notwithstanding, is paying an unacceptably steep penalty, both for himself and for the children who idolize him.

For himself, it is the eventual realization, hopefully not too close to interment time, that he is missing the call of the Master to put his heart in heaven where the true treasure should be.

For the children, that penalty is either utter disappointment or, what is worse, a driving urge to follow and imitate him.

'Gator killed Thursday in Webb Street culvert

BY TRACI BONNEY
Webb Street in Bay St. Louis had a toothy, unwelcome visitor Thursday — an eight-foot-long alligator.

George Wright, supervisor for District 9A of the Department of Fisheries, Wildlife and Parks, said the Waveland Police Department called the Bureau of Marine Resources around 2 p.m. Thursday to report that an alligator was in a culvert on Webb Street. The Department of Fisheries, Wildlife and Parks then sent out a unit, which contacted an agent trapper to dispose of the animal, which was deemed a "nuisance alligator."

Wright explained, "A 'nuisance alligator' is one that either returns several times to an area, or is more than six feet long. If an alligator is considered a nuisance, an agent trapper is authorized to dispose of it."

"If the alligator isn't classified as a nuisance, the agent trapper captures it and relocates it."

Recent rains are most likely a factor in the alligator's appearance, Wright said. He commented that heavy rains flush the reptiles out of local bayous and ponds by giving them a means to travel.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we start getting calls about alligators on the beach if the rain keeps up," he said.

Wright stated that anyone who spots an alligator should stay away from it and call the police or sheriff's department.

He cautioned that if you do get close to an alligator, you should not scream, but should back away slowly so as not to startle it. If the reptile starts to pursue you, he added, run in a zigzag pattern instead of a straight line.

"When an alligator gets his legs under him, he can pick up some speed. But if you run to the left or right, the alligator can't turn that fast.

"If you don't corner an alligator, he probably will turn away. He doesn't want to have anything to do with you, and you definitely don't want to have anything to do with him."

Silver Tea planned April 21

Dinner dance, poster contest, golf festival planned by AHA

Special to the Echo
Listen! Listen to the beat—the beat of the Hancock County American Heart Association. A multi-event Heart Festival is planned to benefit residents of Hancock County.

A Gala Dinner Dance on Saturday, May 18 will be in the Coral Room of the Diamondhead Country Club. Cocktails will be served from 6:30 to 7:30, with dinner promptly at 7:30. Black tie optional. Reservations are a must.

Send check to Diamondhead Hancock Bank, attn: Alicia, 401 Kalani Dr., Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Make check payable to the Hancock County American Heart Association in the amount of $45 per couple. Deadline is May 16, 1991.

Co-chairpersons of this event are Belle Hecker and Marge Edwards of Diamondhead and Stella Frilot, mayor of Waveland. Remember, a check for this event includes a tax-deductible contribution.

A poster contest is being held in conjunction with the dinner dance. Students in all schools in Hancock County in grades kindergarten through sixth are eligible to participate. Particulars on this event will be available at the schools.

Posters are to be brought to the Waveland Library by the April 19 deadline. Posters will be judged on April 23 by Mike Conroy, Hancock representative of WLOX, Janet McQueen, managing editor of The Sea Coast Echo, and Brother Aquin of St. Stanislaus. After the judging, all posters will be displayed at the libraries in Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

The winner of the poster contest will be invited to autograph copies of his/her poster at the Diamondhead Country Club from 6:30 to 7:30 before the dinner dance on May 18.

Proceeds from poster sales will go to the Hancock County American Heart Association. Copies of the winning poster will be displayed at businesses in the Bay-Waveland area.

The seventh annual Golf Festival has been set for Saturday, June 22, at the Diamondhead Country Club's Cardinal Course. Entry deadline is June 15. The $60 per player entry fee includes green and cart fees.

The Bubba Oustalet dealership in Gulfport will again provide a special hole-in-one prize, and there will be other prizes provided by the many other businesses who support the Hancock County American Heart Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Casse,

7797 Golf Club Drive, across the street from the 18th green of the Cardinal course, have again offered their beautiful lawn for the awarding of golfing competition and door prizes. Light food and refreshments will be served. Non-golfing participants may join the awards party for a $10 donation.

Contact person for the golf festival is Herb Larson, 6838 Hilo Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Registration information should include name, address, handicap, and telephone number of each team member. Registrants should indicate if they wish to be paired with another entry.

For additional information, contact Cliff Couture, 965 Laala Way, 255-1585, who is serving as golf festival chairperson. This event also provides a tax-deductible contribution.

Police Record

The following incidents and misdemeanor arrests were reported by the Bay St. Louis Police Department for the week of April 8-12:

- 3 contempt of court
- 3 driving on a suspended license
- 2 DUI
- 1 public drunkenness
- 1 simple assault
- 2 disorderly conducts
- 1 petty larceny
- 1 simple possession
- 1 probation violator

Investigator David Parker said the Bay St. Louis Police Department urges all Hancock County residents to report any suspicious activity, people or vehicles in their neighbors to the proper law enforcement officials, who will respond to any and all calls as quickly as they can.

'Time Flies When You're Alive' to be presented at Saenger

Paul Linke's critically-acclaimed one-man show, "Time Flies When You're Alive," will be presented live for four performances at Biloxi's Saenger Theater April 18-21. Curtain times are 8 p.m. on April 18-20 and 3 p.m. April 21.

"Time Flies" became something of a sensation in Los Angeles where Linke performed it for over a year. The critics hailed it as "extraordinary," "an exhilarating tour-de-force," and "a stunning affirmation of life."

Linke has been a working actor in Hollywood for 20 years.

Linke developed his very personal show after his wife Francesca died in 1985 at age 37 following a valiant two-year fight with breast cancer. They had been married for 10 years and were the parents of three children.

A special performance of "Time Flies" will be presented as a benefit for the American Cancer Society on April 16 at 8 p.m. at Center Stage in Biloxi.

Ticket information is available by calling the Saenger Theater at 435-6291, or tickets may be purchased in Bay St. Louis at Ellen Kane Gifts or in Pass Christian at Hillyer House.

American Cancer affiliate hosts red beans/rice lunch

Enjoy a Monday favorite and contribute to a good cause April 22 when the Hancock County chapter of the American Cancer Society hosts a red beans and rice cookoff from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Twelve local restaurateurs will each provide a version of the dish and will vie for "The People's Choice" and "Top Bean" awards.

Each person purchasing a ticket may vote for the restaurant of his choice for the first category, while a celebrity judge will choose the second award.

Virginia Hall at Christ Episcopal Church will be the site of the cookoff.

For additional information or to purchase tickets at $5 each, call Anne Schmidt at 467-0397, Janet McQueen at 467-5473, Basil Kennedy at 467-5793 or Evelyn Kibler at 255-7935.

A list of participating restaurants will be printed in Thursday's Sea Coast Echo.

State welcome centers provide reservation service

The Hancock County Welcome Center, along with welcome centers across the state, will be providing a new service to Mississippi's visitors starting April 15.

Hermine McLarty of the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development said the centers' staffs will not only greet visitors, but will now offer to make their hotel or motel reservations as well.

The centers' new reservation service will provide accommodations information and make reservations for motorists free of charge at more than 170 participating hotels, motels and state parks.

"This reservation service is an extension of the centers' established program of welcoming visitors to the state and providing travel information," said John Horhn, associate director of the Division of Tourism Development, Department of Economic and Community Development, which manages the welcome centers.

"With the centers strategically placed at major entry points into the state, we are attempting to use them to improve tourism and reduce the amount of traffic just passing through, which has been estimated as high as 45 percent."

Rosie Herron, manager of the welcome centers, DECD Division of Tourism Development, said, "In 1990, the welcome centers registered nearly 2.5 million visitors, with Texas and Louisiana ranking first and second, respectively, as the origin states of travelers entering Mississippi. So far this year, approximately 482,000 visitors have signed the centers' registers.

"By offering the reservation service we hope to make travelers' stays in Mississippi more pleasant and possibly encourage them to visit additional areas of the state."

Diamondhead rummage sale supports beautification efforts

The Diamondhead Garden Club is sponsoring a rummage sale Saturday, April 20 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at 2340 Airport Drive in Diamondhead. All proceeds will go toward the beautification of Diamondhead.

In the past, fashion shows, bridge luncheons and evening functions have been held to fund this ongoing project.

The garden club's accomplishments include a complete restoration and continuing maintenance of the atrium in the Diamondhead Community Center; planting trees, plants and bulbs to beautify the entrance to Diamondhead, along with the golf course and neutral grounds; maintenance of the Memorial Gardens at Rotten Bayou Cemetery, and the landscaping of the Kate Lobrano House in association with the Hancock County Historical Society.

There will be a wide variety of items for sale—furniture, appliances, household goods decorative items, toys, clothes and more.

supervisors to have gill net regulations put into place have been met with silence. Harrison supervisors answered a request for a meeting about across-the-coast regulations, but local officials say Jackson County's supervisors have not responded to any communication.

Supervisor Robert Peterson asked Gex Thursday to study the bill and give the board a report about it at Monday's regular mid-month meeting.

Other matters discussed in the Thursday workshop meeting included a proposed jail addition, a law enforcement training range, the use by the Hancock County Youth Court of the Jackson County Youth Shelter, Hancock Medical Center's request to use the now-vacant Health Department building for medical offices and records storage, Fenton and Beardington park projects and lighting pole problems at the new Human Services Complex.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This is one year when I got both my federal and state income tax returns in before the last day.

It is really a good feeling knowing that you are not sweating out the last minute deadline.

I am sure there will be many folks who awake this morning and realize they still have to do their income taxes, put it off until tomorrow and may miss the deadline.

Monday is the deadline day for both federal and state returns.

I realize some folks will file a form 4868, yet if they owe taxes, they have to send a check with the request.

One thing is for sure, if you haven't finished your taxes, you have millions of Americans in the same boat as you.

Reports indicate about 80 percent of those filing returns early are receiving a refund.

The Beachfront Festival will be held this year a bit earlier than in recent years.

The Bay festival, sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Business Association, is scheduled for Sunday, May 19.

It is my understanding there may be several special events for the Saturday prior to the festival this year.

Members of the Bay Business Association are busy lining up entertainment, vendors, etc. for the big festival.

We will be telling you more as the affair gets closer.

There is a big family reunion planned for next Sunday at the Hancock County Civic Center.

It will be the gathering of the Simon Favre clan. I know there is a large number of Favres in the area.

so I suspect this will be a large gathering.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi
Economic Council

The rising costs of environmental protection

Environmental protection costs are going up over the next decade, and state and local governments will be picking up most of the tab.

That's the projection from the National Council of State Legislatures, an organization that keeps an eye on financial trends among governments at federal, state, and local levels.

In 1987, the Council reports, federal, state and local governments spend about $40 billion for environmental protections. That amount is expected to climb to $61 billion by the end of the decade.

As environmental costs escalate, however, the federal government will be backing away. In 1987, the federal government provided 13 percent of total environmental expenditures.

By the end of the decade, the Council warns, the federal government's share will have been reduced to just 8 percent.

State funds are also beginning to level off, which means that local governments can expect to have environmental expenditures doubled before the end of the century.

And, for the average American household, this means a 54 percent increase in the average household share of environmental costs—an annual average cost of $647 per household.

What does all this mean for Mississippi? It simply means that in Mississippi, where the state already trails the rest of the nation in environmental response, somebody better wake up.

Business comes to the aid of government

A private sector movement to come to the aid of government is gaining momentum.

Now, more than 30 business organizations and firms have agreed to fund and conduct a study to identify ways state and local governments can be more efficient.

And, within recent days, the Legislature has adopted a resolution authored by the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Representative Charlie Capps of Cleveland.

endorsing the study and calling upon state agencies to cooperate in the study.

What better time than now, with state and local governments facing financial crisis, than to have business step in with a helping hand.

The study will begin in late spring with a report and recommendations, in whole or in part, to be given to the Legislature and to the Governor by the end of the calendar year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Abortion statistics prove many opponents are misinformed

Dear Editor,

This letter is in response to the article by Traci Bonney of April 7, "Local clinic counselor pleased with state's new abortion bill," in which Ms. Judy Caplinger was quoted exclusively.

Aside from the one-sidedness of the reporting, the article only helps to enhance the abounding myths concerning abortion and its repercussions.

Ms. Caplinger is quoted, "Studies have proven that most women who abort a child suffer from post-abortion syndrome which can affect them mentally, emotionally and even physically."

To which "studies" is Ms. Caplinger referring? An extensive study by the American Psychological Association shows that most women do not suffer lasting psychological trauma, and there is no evidence to support the existence of a "post-abortion syndrome."

Although abortion is not an easy decision for any woman, most who have the procedure feel relief rather than depression. Additionally, serious emotional complications are rare.

As for physical risk, all studies indicate that legal, medical abortions have fewer risks to the woman than carrying a pregnancy to full term and giving birth. The chances of death from a legal abortion are less than one in 100,000, compared to 20 per 100,000 pregnancies and births. Just for the record, that is significantly less than the estimated 1,000 deaths from 100,000 illegal abortions (1 in 100).

Abortions performed in the first trimester (up to 12 weeks gestation) are simple and safe.

The only possible complications are excessive bleeding or minor infection. In addition, abortion does not reduce fertility. Repeat procedures do increase the chances of later miscarriages, but permanent damage to the reproductive organs is practically nonexistent.

Although any bill to restrict the right to safe, legal abortion is not good, at least this one is not as damaging as it could have been, nor is it similar to that proposed by our neighboring state.

I support Governor Mabus in his veto and his convictions on the abortion issue. Since this is America, everyone is entitled to their own opinions, however misinformed they may be. Ms. Caplinger needs to re-read some of her sources. By the way, I'd be more than happy to provide mine.

Sincerely,
Mary B. Trudell
Bay St. Louis.

Rev. Barber's focus on casting lots misplaced

To the Editor:

It seems that Reverend Nathan Barber of Bay St. Louis has misplaced his focus. He should be centered on "The Christ," rather than peripheral issues like gambling. He is clouding an issue which has existed throughout the Old and New Testaments.

I might refresh his memory. The evolution of the Hebrew word (goral-lot) was used for the portion of things that fell to a person, and hence to mean the inheritance, one's destiny or lot in life (see Ps. 16:5, 6; Jer. 13:25).

The number of Old Testament uses for casting lots is too numerous to list here. I would like to mention two instances which immediately come to mind. They are the person who was to succeed the traitor, Judas, in the twelve (Acts 1:26) and when the soldiers who carried out the execution of Christ cast lots for his garments. (Matt. 27:35, Mk. 15:24, Lk. 23:34, Jn. 19:24, see Ps. 22:19).

Churches have used games of chance to gather support financially for years. As a matter of fact, First Baptist Church on Main Street was selling chances for a doll on Saturday, April 6.

As a last word, I might add Christ had a hard time forgiving hypocrites. (Matt. 23:1-39). I cast my lot with Christ and the Apostles. How about you?

County fugitives on state most wanted list

Two fugitives from Hancock County have been placed on Mississippi's 10 "Most Wanted" list.

Jeffery D. Kerr, 48, is wanted by the Hancock County Sheriff's Office for escape and importation of drugs.

Mia Solomon, 39, of New Orleans, is wanted by the sheriff's office for armed robbery, breaking and entering, forgery and interstate transportation of stolen property.

Kerr is a white man, six foot one inch tall, weighing 200 pounds. His hair is brown and his eyes are hazel. He has a tattoo on his right upper arm and chest, and a scar on his face.

His last known address was #41 Riverside, Pearlington. Solomon is a black man, six foot tall, weighing 180 pounds. His hair is black and his eyes are brown. He has a scar on his right elbow.

Soloman's last known address was 7700 Read Road, New Orleans.

The Mississippi "Most Wanted" fugitive list is prepared by the Criminal Investigation Bureau (CIB) of the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

Major Jay Clark, director of the CIB, cautions the public that if contact is made with any of these individuals immediately notify local law enforcement authorities or call CIB's 24 hour toll free in-state WATS line number, 1-800-552-8477.

The September 1990 most wanted bulletin resulted in the Hancock County Sheriff's Office clearing its case involving Jerry L. Halthon, 33, of Pascagoula, wanted for kidnapping and rape.

Upon distribution of the bulletin, it was reported to Mississippi authorities that Halthon had been murdered in a domestic quarrel in Detroit, Mich.

Strike

The issues of health and retirement benefits are being bargained together, for all the unions, while wage issues are being bargained with each union separately.

If the railworkers go on strike Wednesday, Congress can take action if they deem the situation to be one causing a national emergency.

Judy Brazeal, director of public relations for the 90,000 member United Transportation Union (UTU) reported by phone from Chicago, Ill., "We will picket only freight and cargo services; no commuter or passenger service will be affected."

During the phone interview with Martin, he said, "The railroads have threatened to refuse track usage to the commuter and Amtrack lines, should the workers go on strike."

"If the railroads refuse track usage," commented Brazeal to the prospect, "it will cause a national emergency."

UTA, Brazeal said, is fighting over "crew consist," what makes up a crew of a train. The railroads want to eliminate the number of men in a crew. The union believes that number should be locally determined, depending on the size of the service, whereas the railroads want the determination to be made nationally.

"Today, the Transportation and Communication Workers (office workers) and the Brotherhood of Signal Workers, have reached tentative agreements," Martin added.

"Congress can do any number of things should the workers chose to strike."

"They could send them back to work for 30 days; Create a special mediation board or enforce the PEB findings."

"But for now, Congress is waiting to see what happens."

"No one wishes to prejudice the situation."

Marquar and companion Stanley Beauregard, a worker with Union Pacific expressed their disappointment with the attitude of the carriers.

"When Operation Desert Storm began, we held off striking for the welfare of the country. We, the workers, moved tons of military equipment across this nation. While the railroads made their money, we held back our needs."

"We don't want to strike, but we will."

Brazeal, on the other hand, was firm about what Wednesday will bring, saying, "Yes, I do believe there will be a strike."

Attempts to contact for comment CSX were unsuccessful.

Fake I.D.'s circulating in county

There are about 150, Tracie A. Phillips and James A. Williams III throughout Hancock County reported Investigator James Varnell of the Waveland

Police Department.

A 17 year old was arrested 11 p.m. Friday when he was found to be exercising his artistic abilities forging Mississippi State driver licenses and selling them for $10 apiece.

Varnell said the young man had two boards setup for reproduction. One for a female I.D.

and one for a male.

Varnell reminds those walking around with the fake identifications, if found using them, the fine is $500 and up to six months in jail.

Book sale commemorates National Library Week

"Those Who Read Succeed" is the theme for the 1991 National Library Week, set for April 14 to 20, according to Prima Wusnack, Hancock County Library System director.

All three branches of the system will be among more than 200 libraries across the state to actively take part in the celebration.

"The theme emphasizes how important reading is to personal and social success," said Wusnack, "and we encourage parents to read to their children to develop lifelong reading habits. We also urge everyone to read and use their local library."

In celebration of the promotion, free bookmarks will be available to all checking out materials. The City-County branch will also hold a week long half price book sale.

"Normally, our book sale is 50 cents an inch, but, to honor National Library Week, the sale will be 25 cents an inch," continued Wusnack, "and we want everyone to come by and purchase some books."

National Library Week is sponsored locally by the Hancock County Library System and statewide by the Mississippi Library Commission and the Mississippi Library Association.

Story Hour titles told

"Just Us Chickens" will be the theme for this week's children's story hour at the City-County Public Library, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis.

Henny Penny, Hattie and the Fox and The Wolf's Chicken Stew are the books to be featured on Wednesday, April 17, at 10:30 a.m. at the City-County Public Library. Children will view a film and make their own Henny Penny film strip.

"What Will I Wear?" is the theme at the Waveland Library Friday, April 19, 10:30 a.m.

Little Red Riding Hood and New Blue Shoes are the books to be read during story hour. Children will see two finger plays and will play a cut and tell story.

Programs and activities are designed for pre-school children three to five years of age who are not part of a nursery or pre-school group. Programs last approximately one hour.

More information may be obtained by calling Karen Peoples at the Waveland Library, 467-9240, or Sandra Ladner, City-County Library, 467-5282.

Waveland residents win "jitterbug" contest

Dee Wendling and Herman Bonck won first place in a "jitterbug" contest held Sunday at Pointe Cadet during the Biloxi Boys and Girls Club Oyster Festival. Wendling's husband, Nick, and Bonck's wife, Marie, cheered their spouses to victory. The two Waveland couples have been friends and traveling companions for many years. Marie did not dance because of a back injury and Nick preferred the oyster samplings, according to Dee Wendling. The couples plan to attend a local crawfish festival next week to support Wendling and Bonck while they "shake a leg" in "jitterbug" competition once more. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Nice and fast and easy "does it" in the kitchen these balmy Spring days when I'd rather be outside digging in the dirt and planting new shrubs and such, as well as repotting straggly plants and so on, than in chopping and blending and cooking—that is, in between the rain showers and or deluges!

And, happily, our area supermarkets are chockful of good ideas for "quick-fixing" meals or meals that cook along by themselves for the most part, with scant attention from the would-be gardener or yard worker.

This afternoon, while I'm happily planting petunias and geraniums and such, a specially-priced boneless beef chuck roast is cooking away in my crockpot, along with potatoes and onions and carrots, just about ready for me after I dash into the house and scrub up!

At other times, I might cook that chuck, roast or a shoulder roast (these are offered at good prices, also) in my cast iron Dutch oven atop the stove, as it takes very little monitoring while it simmers away. Or, you might take a leaf from Peg Bracken's "I Hate to Cook Book" and do a "Sweep Steak" or roast. (She called it that because the quick and easy recipe had swept the country in the late 1950's—it's still popular today. Here's:

"SWEEP STEAK"
2 or 3 lb. round steak or pot roast.
Package of onion soup mix (dry)

Place meat on a sheet of aluminum foil large enough to wrap it. Sprinkle the onion-soup mix atop the meat, fold the foil, airtight, around it, and place in baking pan. Bake at 300 degrees for 3 hours. If you like, open up the package an hour before it's done, and surround with potatoes and carrots, and continue baking. Peg Bracken also said that this might also be baked at 200 degrees for 9 hours, but I haven't tried that as yet. I'd probably forget all about it!

This recipe makes 6 or so servings. There are variations on this theme, one of which calls for a can of undiluted mushroom soup in addition to the onion soup mix, making for good gravy!

For another version, place the steak or roast in a Dutch oven or similar heavy iron skillet with a lid. After you have sprinkled the onion-soup mix on the meat, pour 2 cups of Burgundy wine on top of it all, replace the lid, and cook in the same way, adding the potatoes, carrots, etc. for the last half hour of cooking at 300 degrees, and for the last hour, if cooking at 200 degrees.

Incidentally, one of my friends uses boneless beef stew pieces, instead of round or shoulder or chuck roast or steak for this dish, with good results.

Boston Butt pork roasts are also a good buy this week, as are quarter loin chops and breakfast chops. And, for other fast-but-good meals, snap up the specials on lean ground chuck and round, or other fresh ground beef, and stir up a speedy:

BEEF, RICE AND ZUCCHINI SKILLET
3/4 cup long grain rice
1 lb. lean ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
2 medium zucchini (1 lb.), cubed

1 (8 oz.) can tomato sauce
1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
1 cup water
1 1/2 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 lb. Swiss cheese, grated
First, prepare the rice and set aside. Brown the meat and onion in a skillet, over medium-high heat, and drain. Stir in the zucchini cubes, tomato sauce and paste, water, sugar, salt, pepper and cooked rice. Bring to a boil.

Reduce the heat and simmer, uncovered, for 20 minutes or until zucchini is tender, stirring often. Sprinkle cheese over the mixture in the skillet, cover and cook for just 2 or 3 minutes or until the cheese is melted. If you like, garnish with corn chips. (6 servings.)

Or, just pan fry or broil some burgers, and give 'em that touch of Old Mexico with salsa, a favorite in our Southwest and fast becoming a national favorite. Here's one version of:

CHERRY TOMATO SALSA
2 pts. cherry tomatoes, chopped
4 green onions, chopped (including green tops)
1 can (40 oz.) diced green chiles, undrained

1 can (4.25 oz.) chopped ripe olives, drained
3 Tblsp. olive oil
2 Tblsp. red wine vinegar
1 tsp. garlic salt (or to taste)

In large bowl, mix all ingredients. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours to allow flavors to blend. (Approximately 3 cups)—from "Sizzling Southwestern Cookery" by Lisa Schroeder, Meadowbrook Press)

Other salsas may be made with chopped large ripe tomatoes and jalapeno peppers, or even a shot of tequila for a real Tex-Mex touch! Here, from the same cookbook, is:

SALSA CON TEQUILA
1 can (28 oz.) whole tomatoes, seeded, drained and chopped
6 fresh mild green Anaheim chiles, roasted, peeled, and chopped or 1 can (7 oz.) diced green chiles, undrained
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 canned pickled jalapeno chiles, chopped
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
2 Tblsp. fresh cilantro leaves
1 1/2 Tblsp. tequila
1 Tblsp. olive oil
Salt to taste
In medium bowl, mix all ingredients, cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours to allow flavors to blend. (Approximately 2 1/2 cups). You may, of course, omit the tequila. Note: If you haven't any cilantro (coriander, Mexican parsley) about, substitute parsley, although it won't have quite the same woodsy, citrus-pungent flavor of cilantro.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Chicken livers, so tasty and versatile, are easily and quickly cooked fresh, or when thawed quickly from the frozen state, needing little by way of preparation.

Of course, if you're one of those who dislike even the thought of chicken livers for dinner or whenever, that's another matter; but don't fret, I'll be more than happy to devour your share—and everyone else's!

The secret, of course, of truly tasty and tender chicken livers is to avoid overcooking them; for overcooked livers are not only bullet-hard and dry, they are also quite bitter. So, these morsels should be cooked only until firm on the outside, but still faintly pink in the center; and, if you saute or fry the livers this way, you may find even some of the avowed liver haters changing their minds and palates. But then, you'll have to share!

At times, I stockpile the chicken livers in the freezer, when I've brought home whole chickens, until I've enough for a meal. At other times, I buy a pound or so, rinse and pat dry. Then I spread the livers out individually on a cookie sheet and freeze, and store in a freezer bag.

When frozen "loose" in this manner, the livers may be thawed quickly in whatever quantity you wish at the moment, then cooked. (Just be sure to pull or cut off any globs of yellow fat clinging to the livers, then rinse and pat dry before cooking. That's why I buy fresh livers whenever possible, as I prefer to remove the fat globs before freezing.)

At times I saute the livers in barely a smidgen of olive oil or butter, or in a non-stick skillet with a bit of olive-oil-based cooking spray, along with chopped fresh parsley and chopped green onions.

At other times, I saute the livers with chopped fresh tomatoes or juice, or blanket them in a sour cream sauce. And, I especially like to make a chicken-liver pasta pie, an elegant dish for a buffet luncheon or supper, or a brunch, or whenever you bestir yourself to mix it all up!

It's from Gail Thames' files. When Gail gave me the recipe, she said that she couldn't remember where she had first found it, but she was ever so glad that she had! And so am I; I've used the recipe quite often, with happy results! Here's:

CHICKEN-LIVER PASTA PIE

2 large eggs
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
10 cooked lasagna noodles
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 lb. chicken livers, halved
1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen artichoke hearts, thawed
1/2 lb. medium mushrooms, quartered
1 medium onion, sliced
1 medium red pepper, chopped
2 medium garlic cloves, crushed
1/2 tsp. dried marjoram leaves, crushed
1/4 tsp. dried thyme leaves, crushed

1/2 lb. escarole, washed and cut in 1/2-inch-wide strips
1/4 cup unsifted all-purpose flour

1/4 cup dry vermouth
3/4 cup milk
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese

In large bowl, whisk eggs with Parmesan cheese and 2 tablespoons salad oil until blended; add cooked noodles and toss to coat. Arrange noodles, spoke fashion, in 9-inch pie plate, allowing noodles to extend over edge of plate. Set aside.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In large skillet, over medium-high heat, melt 2 tablespoons butter. Add chicken livers and saute 5 minutes. Remove livers to small bowl; clean skillet. In same skillet, over medium-high heat, melt remaining butter. Add artichoke hearts, mushrooms, onion, red pepper, marjoram, garlic, thyme, 1 tsp. salt and 1/4 tsp. pepper, and saute 3 minutes. Stir in escarole, and cook, covered, 3 minutes, or until escarole wilts.

In a small glass measure, blend flour with vermouth; stir in milk until smooth. Stir flour mixture into the mixture in skillet, and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened, 1 minute. Remove the skillet from heat, and stir in mozzarella and livers. Spoon the mixture into prepared pie plate, mounding slightly. Bring ends of noodles up and over filling.

Bake 30 minutes, until noodles are golden and filling is bubbly. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting. (8 servings)

It really isn't all that much trouble to mix this all up and cook it, and I assure you that they'll ask for the recipe!

Great Books group to discuss 'The Leviathan'

The Great Books Discussion is continuing with The Leviathan by Thomas Hobbes. The meetings will be Thursday, April 18 at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis.

Following the discussion, the group will talk about The Married Land by Charles G. Bell, a Mississippi author.

Interested participants may call Gigi Raymond at 466-4665 or the library at 467-5282. The Great Books Discussion group meets in the library's meeting room.

Hairworks cut-a-thon benefits Global ReLeaf

Hairworks will raise money to help nationwide tree-planting efforts by hosting an Aveda Cut-A-Thon in their salon at 404 Dunbar Avenue in Bay St. Louis on April 21. Hairworks will be one of 2,000 Aveda salons across the country to open its doors for business on Sunday in observance of Earth Day 1991. The salon will offer haircuts at a reduced price and donate the day's proceeds to Global ReLeaf, the national tree-planting program of the American Forestry Association. The Aveda Cut-A-Thon offers consumers a chance to do something good for the environment while doing something good for themselves.

Trees help our environment in many ways: they provide oxygen and remove carbon dioxide from our air; they control flooding and prevent soil erosion; they shade our homes and streets; and they provide habitat for wildlife. Global ReLeaf's initiative in promoting the nation's tree and forest resources has made it the most successful tree-planting organization in the world.

This is the second annual Aveda Cut-A-Thon. Last year's 1990 Cut-A-Thon raised $70,000 for Global ReLeaf.

Nationwide, the Aveda Cut-A-Thon is sponsored by Aveda Corporation, Minneapolis, Minn. Aveda manufactures and markets hair, skin, beauty and environmental care products made from pure flower and plant essences.

Pioneer family

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

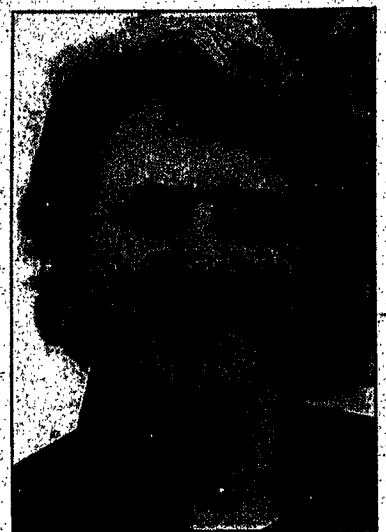

The Bay St. Louis Business Association and the City of Bay St. Louis will sponsor a "Cajun Concert in the Park," according to chief of occasion Carole Ripley.

Ripley, a Massachusetts native, said the April 20 event is scheduled to run between 6 and 9 p.m. at City Hall Park on Second Street in Bay St. Louis.

Music will be provided by Garland Moran and the Night Travellers. The production is being touted as a Cajun gourmet's delight; gumbo, jambalaya and hot crawfish will headline the menu.

Advance tickets are available at the Olde Towne Restaurant, 119 Main Street; Ruth's Bakery, 130 Court Street; and the Chamber of Commerce on Hwy. 90.

All proceeds from the concert, one of an anticipated series of similar productions, will be dedicated to civic projects undertaken by the business association throughout the year. The association will also sell food tickets on the night of the event.

Travel, recreation choices reflect family lifestyles

Whether the arrival of spring/summer signals the start of your travel season or it just means the opportunity to spend weekend hours enjoying outdoor activities, this is the time to revel in easy living. The warm days beckon us to "get away from it all."

That may take the form of a family camping trip across the country or a long weekend at the shore, travel to another con-ties will give you something special to look forward to—and it also will help ensure that summer won't slip away before you've enjoyed every possible sun-filled moment.

Organizing a softball game, going jogging in the park with a friend after work, or spending a day in the country topped off with a special picnic are ways of brightening a summer spent close to home.

traveling, each member can participate in the preparations. Even young children can be given responsibility for some aspect of the advance planning.

Selecting a favorite toy or book to take along, being exposed to discussions on how the family pet will be cared for during your absence, or being allowed to help choose the clothing to be packed may even help mitigate the feeling of upheaval that can sometimes accompany events that are exciting, yet unfamiliar to very young children.

Older children can assist by helping to catch up on the laundry, running errands and packing their own clothes (with assistance, if necessary).

Whether they are headed off to camp, traveling with the family, or going on a backpacking trek with the local Scout troop, young people should be included in the process of getting ready for the big event. It's a good way to instill a sense of responsibility and to teach important lessons on organization.

Spending some relaxed time with your loved ones or retreating to the mountains for a few solitary days can revive emotional and physical energy.

Or, perhaps you are full of vigor, eager to capitalize on the balmy summer days perfect for outdoor sports and exercise. If so, now is the time for tennis, bicycling in the country, and swimming at the beach or pool.

Even just walking, instead of driving, to the market the next time you need to pick up a few groceries, can be a pleasant way to spend a summer evening.

Advance preparations are even more important when organizing away-from-home vacations. In addition to making travel plans and packing the appropriate attire, there is a myriad of details to attend to.

Buying film for the camera, arranging for a neighbor to bring in the mail while you're gone, and making sure that you have enough traveler's checks are but a few of the pre-vacation errands that should not be overlooked. Making lists of particular chores may help avoid oversights and confusion.

If you are concerned about planning a vacation that the entire family will appreciate, a well-staffed resort offering a wide variety of activities may be a wise choice. In a setting where adults and children of all ages are provided for, each person can savor the feeling of freedom that is so much a part of a refreshing vacation.

Helpful hints for smooth traveling with children

Family travel is a wonderful time for children to expand their horizons—to see new places and new faces. To help make the most of your vacation, be sure to get organized before you depart.

Here are some helpful hints to keep in mind when getting ready for your next family vacation.

- Involve your children in the selection of a vacation spot. Give them a choice of several potential destinations, and have them "research" each one by checking travel books out of the library and writing to tourist bureaus to receive information.

- Let the children help with the trip preparations. Give them storage bags and encourage them to fill them with some of their favorite books, cards, toys, coloring books and crayons. These selections should keep them busy on long car trips.

- Encourage your children to keep diaries of their trip adventures. Also have them keep "visual" notes by taking photographs of special spots along the way.

After the trip, when the pictures are developed, let the children create an album for a complete collection of trip memories.

- Buy postcards at stops along the way. Encourage children to mail postcards to their friends, grandparents and neighbors.

BY TRACI BONNEY

Pat George: quilter, dollmaker and, most recently, furniture finisher.

Pat, a Slidell, La., resident, is the owner and prime creative force behind False Pretenses, a faux finish painting business on State Street in Bay St. Louis.

Pat's business is almost literally a cottage industry, based in one of the city's older buildings, owned by Ed Jurkowski and John Harris. It is what was once the kitchen of a large house.

The house was torn down to make way for a small apartment complex, but the kitchen building remains. With it remains what may be the best piece of folk art in the area — three carved wooden hands mounted to the porch overhang's support beams.

port beams.

Pat said the hands, which have holes drilled in them and are currently holding small American flags, once held chains that were attached to pails. These pails gave the butter-and-egg man a place to put his wares when he delivered them so that they would be off the ground and away from animals and pests.

The interior of the little house is as intriguing as the exterior. The two front rooms are cluttered with pieces of furniture in various stages of being finished. Cans, drop clothes, brushes and splattered paint are further evidence of the creative work in progress.

One room, with light streaming in from several windows, is the primary work area. It's where Cheryl Blanchard and

The other room eventually will become Pat's showroom. It has a fireplace mantle that she marbled, as well as some finished pieces and more furniture and items that await the artist's touch.

Pat started finishing furniture about six years ago. At first, she was buying, finishing and selling pieces. Now, most of her work comes from outside her shop. People bring things to her and ask her to transform them.

She also does some interior design work for houses and businesses. Kung's Dynasty Restaurant is one of several places in New Orleans that showcase her artistry.

The restaurant has four fireplaces that appear to be of jade and lapis lazuli. They aren't, but you can't tell that by looking at them.

"I do fireplaces, stairways, bathrooms. One of my clients in Louisiana has a bathroom with real marble floors and faux marble walls now. It's really unusual."

Pat's interest in faux finishes predates her involvement by many years. "About 30 years ago, I became interested in the work of Isabel O'Neal, one of Europe's premier faux finishers. Later, I had a piece of my own furniture done by someone, and when I got it back, I thought, 'I could do this.' That's how I got hooked."

The self-taught finisher started with a book called Paint Magic, which explains an old European method in which the painter layers paint, linseed oil and solvent, then manipulates it to get the desired look.

Pat said faux finishes were once valued more than wood grain finishes. Once a status symbol — and still one to some extent because of the cost — faux finishing now serves a different purpose.

"Not all furniture is made of the choice wood," Pat explained. "If you could strip some of it down, you would probably find four different woods in it. Finishing helps unify a piece of furniture."

Pat's designs are created job by job. She said she doesn't follow a set pattern, although she does a lot of wood grain simulation, marbling, and tortoise shell finishing. "I want to do graining with patterns I create one day," she commented. Marble and wood grain looks are steady favorites.

However, "tortoise shell is the most popular finish right now," Pat said.

One of her favorite wood grain/marble pieces might not attract your attention at first. It's a desk which looks like a fine piece of bird's-eye maple topped by black marble. Since it has a faux finish, you are not surprised to find that it isn't maple and marble.

However, you will be surprised to find out what it is. It's metal.

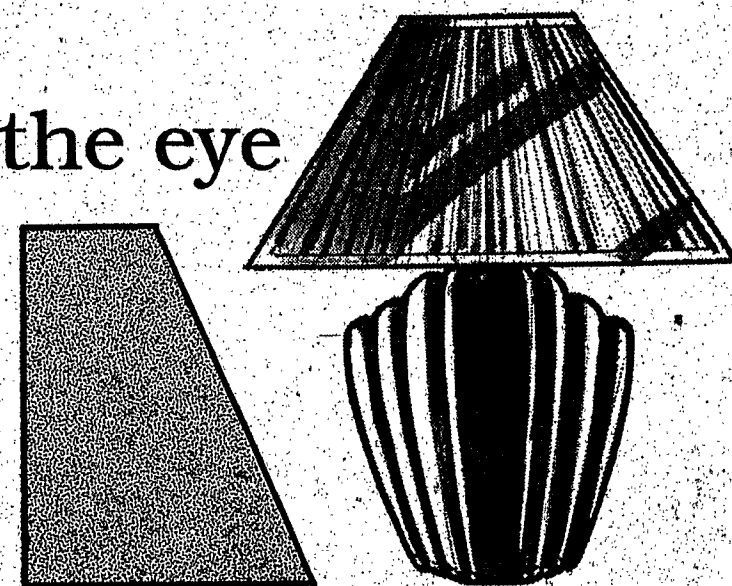

"I fooled a lady who collects bird's-eye maple," she said. "I'm very proud of that piece of work."

Although Pat is pleased to know her wood grain and other work is good enough to fool even connoisseurs, whimsical finishes are her favorite ones to do. They allow her creativity to shine through in ways the more traditional finishes don't.

One of her whimsical pieces, currently at Bay Crafts, is a cupboard that is painted to remind you of a yellow taxi cab. It even has a painted sign listing cab fares. Pat said she wants to mount a car mirror to the cupboard when she finds the right one.

She also likes to find new uses for furniture. Right now, she's working on turning chairs and other small items into plant stands for herb gardens. She indicated a terra cotta finished chair and explained, "You get this lovely little herb garden, and if you want to use the chair for a chair, you just have to have it repaired — it can't be sat on right now — and put a seat on it."

Pat also paints other items, including lamps, mirrors and small boxes.

"I spent 20 years designing and making quilts, then decided I was ready for a major change. I did a brief stint as a doll maker, then got into this.

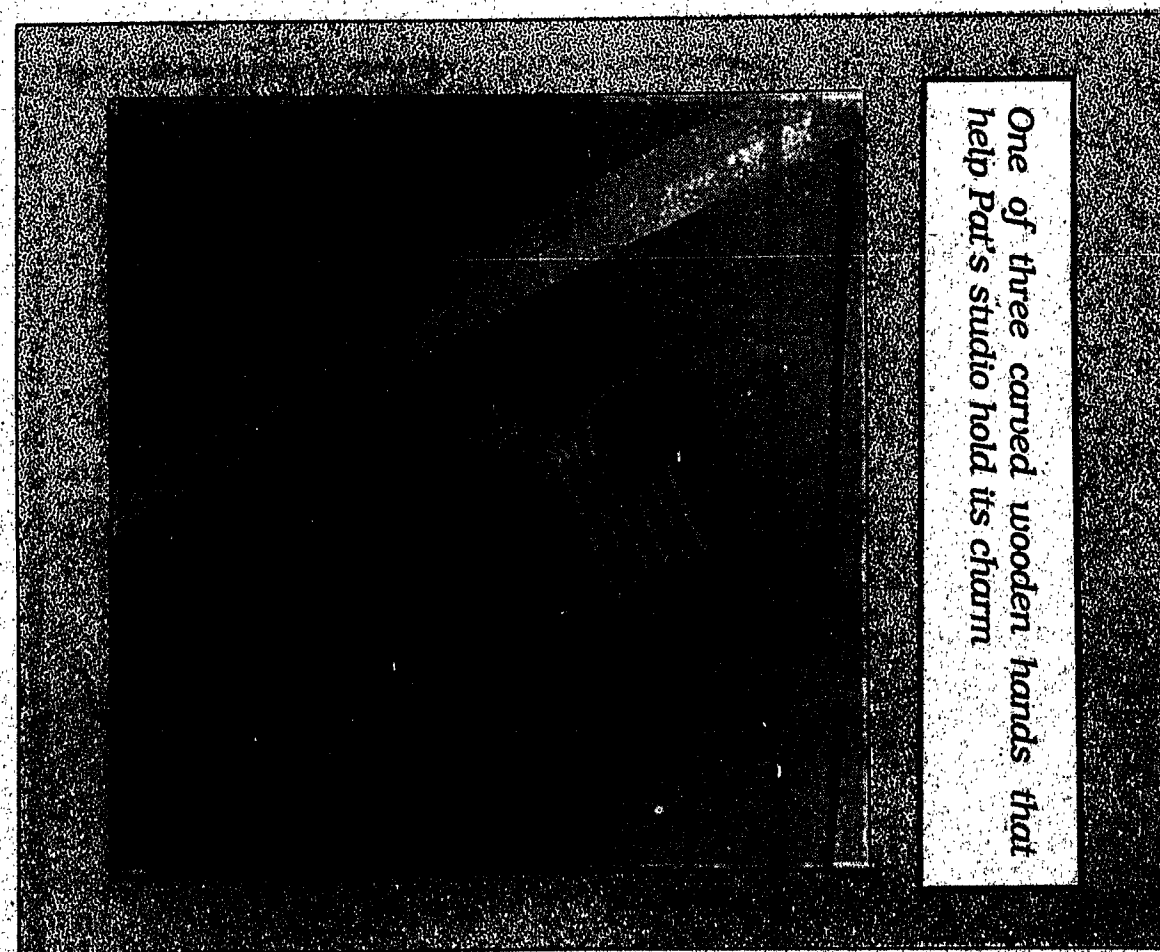

"I'd like to do this for 20 years. Then, who knows?"

This table, whatnot and fireplace are among the pieces that have been touched by Pat's brush.

Marcia Hertz do preparatory work for Pat's faux finishes, stripping, sanding and putting base paint coats on the items to be transformed.

Pat said she is very grateful for their work, as well as the small repair jobs her husband Rick (who is in finance at Martin Marrieta) handles. "If it weren't for them, I wouldn't get anything done," she said.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

American Legion Auxiliary Post 77

The April 2 meeting of Post 77 Auxiliary was called to order by the president, Janice Carver. After the colors were advanced, chaplain Mary Caillier offered the opening prayer.

All members recited the Pledge of Allegiance and the Preamble. Following a roll call of officers, committee members gave their reports.

The corned beef and cabbage dinner was a huge success despite the rainy weather and cancellation of the St. Patrick's Day parade, said Carver.

Veterans at the Gulfport VA were visited Easter, and an Easter egg hunt was staged for local children.

Nominations for 1991-92 officers were discussed.

Coming events include initiation of new members and the Ninth District meeting May 4 and 5 to be hosted by Post 77.

In a somber service, presided over by Carver and Caillier, the membership of past president, the late Irene Giaconi, was transferred to Post Everlasting.

The next meeting will be May 9. All members are asked to bring a can of food for the Food Pantry.

After returning of the colors and the closing prayers, refreshments were served.

Sierra Club

The April 25 program of the Sierra Club will feature a slide and lecture presentation by Jerry Eubanks, superintendent of Gulf Islands National Seashore. This beautiful national treasure is in our own backyard. "Make plans to come and see some of this treasure mined and laid out before you in all its glory, and find out how you can personally enjoy the benefits of living so close to it," said a Sierra Club spokesman.

The public is invited to the free presentation held at the Marine Education Center in Biloxi (located south of Hwy. 90 just before crossing the bridge to Ocean Springs) at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 25. Refreshments will be served.

For more information call 435-2623 or 897-2702.

Abbey, Merwin honored at Pass Harbor Shop

The Harbor Shop hostesses met Wednesday, April 10 in Pass Christian at a coffee party.

President Mary Case presented two awards in recognition of dedicated service to Mrs. Mary J. "Tut" Abbey and Mrs. Lynn Merwin.

Mrs. Abbey served as treasurer from 1968 to 1990. Mrs. Merwin served as hostess and board member from 1962 to 1991.

Mrs. Merwin has recently opened her own shop, The Old Community Shop Mini Mall in the Pass at 301 E. Second Street.

The Harbor Shop, 115 E. Scenic Drive has operated as a non-profit consignment shop continuously since 1961. In November the Harbor Shop will celebrate its 13th year.

Chapter I meeting set

A public planning meeting for Hancock County School's 1991-92 Chapter One Program will take place April 17 at 4 p.m. in the district's central office conference room at Stennis Field.

Topics to be covered will include evaluation for school year 90-91, cost of the previous year, areas of concentration, and overview of the current program and its effectiveness.

All programs, including Dial-A-Drill for school year 91-92, will be discussed along with budget concerns and proposals for offering a replacement program in the ninth grade. All interested parties are encouraged to attend.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The monthly meeting of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 was Monday, April 9 at the Legion Home.

President Janet Aime opened the meeting; color-bearers Hazel Wohlschlegel and Roslyn Weathers, advanced the colors; chaplain Ursula Favre read the opening prayers, and a moment of silence was observed for deceased members.

Aime requested all members join her in the Pledge of Allegiance and the Preamble. Jeanette Ladner, secretary, took the roll call of officers, then read the minutes of the previous meeting.

Treasurer Bobbye Tomlinson gave her report on the financial status of the auxiliary.

Aime called on the various committees to give their reports.

Lucille Boudreaux, legislative, read the bills that are in Congress concerning the veterans; Lou Wilkerson, national security, gave her report;

Oris Planchard, emergency, spoke of the money raised and thanked the members for their help; Roslyn Weathers, community service, told of the events at the Hotel Reed Nursing Center and of how she and Oris Planchard brought clothing to the Women's Shelter and to the VA Hospital in Gulfport.

Aime requested the committee chairmen meet with her Monday, April 15 from 5 to 6 p.m. to bring in reports which are due at this time.

Lucille Boudreaux spoke of the 'Bingwich' on Thursday, April 25 for the veterans at VA Hospital and the live-in-veterans from the neighborhood areas.

There will be a 9th District conference on May 4 and 5, hosted by Auxiliary Unit 77. Registration is at the Waveland Resort Inn.

The meeting was adjourned, and refreshments were served.

The Bonco party was Wednesday, April 10 at the Legion Home. Despite the inclement weather, it was a successful event.

Gulf Coast Orchid Society

The next meeting of Gulf Coast Orchid Society will be at Gulf Coast Community Hospital April 14. Prior to the regular meeting at 2:30 p.m. will be a "New Growers" get-together.

The New Growers, at a 1:30 meeting will be learning about repotting and when to repot their orchids. All new growers are urged to also attend the regular meeting. Mrs. Tony Vaz will give a program on the potting medium osmunda.

In addition to the judged show and tell, there will again be orchids from Hawaii for raffle. A short business meeting is to be held just before the raffle.

Refreshments will be furnished by Ed and Zandie Shardella. Meetings of GCOS are open to any persons interested in growing orchids, and those persons who are just beginning to grow orchids are especially invited to attend the New Growers meeting at 1:30 p.m., Apr. 14 at the Doctors' Meeting Room in Gulf Coast Community Hospital.

For more information, call Robert Stanton at 868-7067 or Janis Zuleeg at 875-1175.

St. Vincent Thrift Shop to close temporarily

St. Vincent de Paul Thrift Shop on Coleman Avenue in Waveland will close temporarily April 28 for repairs to the building.

All goods are offered at $1 per bag until the closing date.

Donations will still be accepted during the closed period. For information, call 467-3604 or 467-3350.

Hours for the shop are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. until noon.

Hancock Women's Club

The Hancock Women's Club held its monthly meeting at the Waveland Library Thursday, Apr. 11 with Lois Cripple presiding. A new member, Alice Seckso, was welcomed into the club.

The club recently planted three shade trees at the walking track in front of the Hancock Medical Center. At 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Apr. 24, a ceremony will be conducted dedicating these three trees to the memory of club members and spouses who died during the past year.

Following the tree ceremony will be Fun and Games at 11 a.m. at McCall Hall of the American Legion on Coleman Avenue in Waveland. Lunch will be donated sandwiches and desserts, which will be sold to those attending. An auction of wrapped items furnished by the members will be held, followed by playing Po-ke-no.

Next month's luncheon meeting will be at 11 a.m. Thursday, May 9 at the Quality Inn in Diamondhead. Tables will be available in the atrium for card playing after the meeting.

At the end of the business meeting, the door prize was raffled and won by Gwen Schilling, and a coffee break was held with sweets provided by Eleanor Shaw.

Guest speaker, Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, was introduced. He told club members that about 80 percent of Mississippi prison inmates were incarcerated due to drug-related crimes. He brought with him a prisoner from the Hancock County jail, who spoke of his drug-related experiences and how he now wanted to reach the young people of this area in order to turn them away from drugs and the consequent crimes that usually follow. The club wishes him great success in this endeavor, for he seems to be sincere and quite capable of making a difference.

ON-THE-JOB INJURY?

Introducing The Work Hardening Program
At Slidell Memorial Hospital

Returning to work after an on-the-job injury can be a time-consuming and costly process. Missed work days and lengthy therapy programs can hinder a worker's productive return to employment. The Work Hardening program at Slidell Memorial Hospital can help most workers return to their jobs more quickly and safely than traditional therapy programs.

HOW IT WORKS

After being evaluated by our team of physicians and therapists, the injured worker receives an individualized program for rehabilitation. The Work Hardening program uses highly technical equipment designed to simulate the working environment so that most workers can return to work at their pre-injury level of productivity. Work Hardening uses computers that monitor the injured worker's achievements during therapy with special equipment with levers, pulleys, wheels, keyboards and other devices that simulate the work environment. Through this therapy, the worker begins a progressive program to strengthen muscles and promote endurance.

THE WORK HARDENING TEAM

The team consists of a physician who is a specialist in physical medicine and rehabilitation, physical therapists, occupational therapists, vocational counselors, rehabilitation counselors, rehabilitation facilitators, industrial facilitators, a registered dietitian and a clinical psychologist.

INDUSTRIAL REHABILITATION SERVICES

The Industrial Rehabilitation Services program at Slidell Memorial Hospital offers numerous programs to help local employers and their employees remain healthy and decrease their health care costs. These programs include Functional Assessments, Job Task and Job Site Analysis and Employee/Corporate Training.

For more information on Work Hardening or any of the Industrial Rehabilitation Services, call Slidell Memorial Hospital at (504) 649-8709.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By H.
Randall Smith

By Randall Smith
Hancock County
Extension Agent
Tomatoes have been one of the all time favorite vegetables among home vegetable gardeners for eons. I know this must be true since the 'Gospels According To John' (that is John Davis, MCES Area Horticulturist) told me they were.

Tomatoes were brought to new heights of prominence when singer Ray Stevens mentioned them in his popular 1970's song "The Scream."

In the song he made reference to Ethel being mooned in front of the 'dermaters' (slang and red-neck for tomatoes). Dr. Milo Burnham found tomatoes so popular that he devoted a whole page in his award-winning MCES publication "The Garden Tabloid" to staking and training tomatoes.

Yes, tomatoes must be properly trained (a task my wife has found nearly impossible with me) and staked to produce quality tomatoes. The main reason of staking and supporting tomato plants is to keep the plants and fruit off the ground.

Attributes of supporting tomato plants include reducing fruit rot, reducing sunburn, making insect and disease control easier (Always Read and Follow All Label Restrictions Before Using Any Pesticide) and making harvest easier.

The three major methods of supporting tomato plants include staking, caging and trellising. However, before discussing these methods, we need to discuss tomato pruning.

Supported tomato plants are pruned (suckered) to reduce the number of branches and makes them more suitable for the selected support method. Tomato types (determinate ger and earlier fruit. Shoots should be removed when they are less than four inches long to avoid injuring the plant.

Remember, removing larger suckers results in a larger wound and wasted growth going into the sucker. Suckers are removed by grasping it between thumb and second finger and bending it to the side until it breaks. Never use a knife to remove suckers since it could spread diseases. Suckers are best removed early in the day while the plants are not wilted.

Before planting tomato plants in the garden, decide on the support method. Plants for trellising are set closer together than staked or caged plants. Plants for caging are set farther apart than plants for staking.

Staking tomatoes requires wooden or metal stakes five to six feet long for indeterminate varieties and three to four feet long for determinate varieties.

Wooden stakes should be at least one inch square and NEVER USE CHEMICALLY TREATED WOOD. Metal stakes can be smaller in diameter and last many years. Sections of concrete reinforcing rods (rebar) make excellent tomato stakes.

With staking space plants 18 to 24 inches apart in the row and place the stake three to four inches from the base of each plant. Place the stake on the side away from the first bloom cluster to prevent trapping the fruit between the plant and the stake.

There are many ways to prune and tie tomato plants. Staked intermediate plants are limited to two or three fruit producing branches.

A popular method is to select the main stem, the sucker that develops immediately below the first bloom cluster (a strong sucker) and one other sucker below that. All other suckers are removed. As you tie the plants, periodically remove the additional suckers that develop on selected branches.

Individual branches are tied to stakes with a soft cord by first tying twine to the stake and then looping it loosely around the plant. Never tie a plant immediately below a fruit cluster since the fruit weight could cause the plant to sag and strip the cluster from the plant. Continue to prune and tie the plant as it grows.

The Florida weave is an alternate system to support staked tomato plants in a row. This method involves using a nylon cord that is tied to the first stake about six to ten inches above the ground.

Tomatoes

Train and stake plants to grow prize winners

The cord is then wrapped once around the second stake at the same level. Keep the cord tight and repeat the process between the remaining stakes. The direction is then reversed and the process repeated on the opposite side of the stakes.

Tomato plants are held in the space between the cords. Repeat this process as the plants grow so the branches are always held between the cord. Three to five runs down the row should be sufficient for the season. To reduce plant material supported, keep pruning the plants as they grow. Staking determinate varieties, on the other hand, should be pruned only once to remove the weak suckers.

Tomato plants supported by cages made from concrete reinforcing wire require less work than staked or trellised tomatoes because there is no tying and only limited pruning.

A five-foot length of ten-gauge reinforcing wire with six inch openings makes a cage of about 18 inches in diameter. For indeterminate varieties, the cages should be at least five feet high.

Shorter cages are best for determinate varieties. Using heavy bolt cutters, remove sections of the bottom horizontal wire, leaving wire legs to stick into the ground. Be careful not to cut yourself in this process. Of course, many nurseries carry factory-made cages.

The tomato plants should be spaced three feet apart in the row with the cage placed over each plant. The nice thing about this system is that early planted tomatoes can be protected from cold and wind by wrapping the bottom 18 inches of each cage with clear plastic. Black plastic mulch, in combination with caging and a clear plastic wrap can promote earliness.

Caged plants are generally pruned to four to five main fruiting branches. As the plants grow, the branch ends are kept turned back into the cages. Caged plants, in general, may not produce ripe tomatoes as early as the other methods but the tomatoes are less likely to crack or sunburn.

Trellising is limited to indeterminate tomato varieties, plants are spaced about one foot apart in the row. Trellised plants are pruned to just the main stem or occasionally to the main stem and one strong sucker (the sucker originating just below the first bloom cluster). All other suckers should be removed as they develop. Trellises should be built by setting support posts in the ground about 20 feet apart. Support posts should be set about six feet above the soil surface. Never use posts treated with toxic materials. Be sure to anchor the posts to prevent collapse under a heavy fruit load.

A heavy wire is then stretched between the tops of the posts. Heavy twine is attached to the wire above each plant and connected to the base of each plant or to a bottom wire if one is used.

As the plants grow, wrap them around the twine or use plastic clips that greenhouse tomato growers use. When trellising two stems per plant, use a separate cord for each stem. Trellising produces ripe fruit earlier with each plant bearing fewer but larger fruit. Trellised tomatoes are more subject to sunburn.

Determinate tomato plants that are not suited for standard trellising and staking because of their limited vine growth and some indeterminate plants can also be held off the ground by a wire trellis.

Support a two to three

Pruning and tying are not necessary, space plants about two feet apart and space the "H" on each side provides additional support to the plants. Tightly stretch and fasten the hog wire at both ends.

Man, I never knew that staking and training tomatoes could be so complicated. If this messy can of worms has totally confused you, be sure to contact your trained nurserymen or local County

8-10 inch clearance between wire and ground foot-width of hog wire eight to ten inches above the ground with "H" supports. Again, never use supports, posts or other structures that are chemically treated.

Center the wire over the row and pull plants through an opening as they grow.

Until next week, this is Randy Smith saying, don't be suckered by those trainable tomatoes this year.

Planting for the future
